Background

The African, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP) Group was formed following the conclusion of the first Lomé Convention with the EU in 1975. Since then it has negotiated and concluded five Conventions characterized by three inter-linked pillars, namely political dialogue; trade and, financial and economic cooperation. It is a unique trans-regional North-South cooperation model consisting of:

- 79 member countries of which 48 from sub-Saharan Africa, 16 Caribbean states and 15 Pacific Island States;
- An inter-governmental framework;
- Wide geographical base, comprising LDC, land-locked and small island states;
- Formal contractual Partnership Agreement with a group of developed and highly integrated countries of the EU; and
- Its own secretariat, structure and supporting organs.

Since 1975, however, there have been many global developments including changes within the institutional architecture of Europe which is the ACP's primary development partner, the pressures of globalization and international competitiveness and the emergence of the new global economic powers which provide new opportunities as well as challenges for the Group. Subsequently, the ACP Council of Ministers decided in November 2010, to set up a Working Group on the Future Perspectives of the ACP Group with the overall objective of formulating perspectives on how the ACP Group can maintain its unity, strengths and solidarity to ensure its role in the 21st Century.
